President's Message

First a big thanks to Jesse May for his time as president. Jesse brought high energy and enthusiasm to every meeting or event and a passion to keep our trails open for our enjoyment.

Second thank you to the new / continuing club officer's Mike Wallace VP, Cheryl May secretary, and Emi Weber treasure. You guys are great and I look forward to working with you in the coming year.

To give all of you a little more information about your new president I have included a brief profile of myself for your reading enjoyment.

Keep our trails open for us!

Adopt-a-Trail – Roger and Roy

Roger went to the Adopt-a-Trail meeting and talked to Greg. The go-around idea is scrapped and is not needed. Greg watched some of the traffic going through and the trail is fine as is, “it is a black diamond trail”.

Ray noted that Roger and Roy are being depended on very heavily to keep this going and the club should make more of a commitment and how many hours can be committed in order to take the burden off them. Roger thinks that the club put in 500 hours last year. Ray would like to see it put in an addition 10% this year. Some discussion of a financial incentive to get people to volunteer more.

Current hours – 116.6 hours

Ray Kleinhuisen

Current Dirt Devil President

Born in Chicago Illinois. and grew up in the northwest part of the city and suburbs.

Moved to Orange County California in 1967 looking for better weather.

Ray completed his engineering BS at California State University Fullerton in 1975. He had a successful engineering career working for Hughes Aircraft, Lockheed Martin and Raytheon company's.

Ray met his wife Karen at California State University Fullerton. Ray and Karen married in 1979 and have two children Robert and Alice.

Ray's first 4X4 was a 1981 CJ-7 with 258, but it was one of the early EFI systems with an automatic. The EFI worked but the automatic didn't. The transmission was rebuilt 3 times in 70K miles. Ray had a small adventure/camping trailer that Karen and he used for back country exploring. The next 4x4 was a 1999 S-10 Blazer that had a 5 inch lift and 32inch tires. The Blazer was used to explore the trails around Big Bear and many area's of the Mohave desert. Ray also has had Dodge, Toyota and Ford trucks that were used for camping and back country exploring.

In 2006 Ray bought a new Wrangler Rubicon LJ. Soon after the Jeep came home a 3.5 In Rubicon Express short arm lift and 33 Toyo AT tires replaced the stock setup. The lift was followed by bumpers, side bars, intake and exhaust upgrades. This made a good factory package much better than stock but who can stop here. The LJ now has 35inch tires, a Rubicon Express 5.5 inch long arm, 488 gears, Warn winch on a Hanson bumper. As you might expect Ray has a long list of future upgrades planned as time and money are available.

First 4 Wheeling experience: In the early 1970's, Ray worked as a bartender at a local country western bar. The manager had a 1960's Toyota Land Cruiser. One night after the bar closed at 2am the manager says 'you want to go wheeling' of course the answer was yes. Before 1975 the 57 fwy between the 91 fwy and the 5 fwy was not complete but the land was all dirt with big hills of dirt where the Lincoln Ave and Ball Rd over passes are today. So there they were running up and down the hills and everywhere in between having a great time. They were out there for maybe 30 to 40 minutes but it seemed like hours. To this day its a mystery why they didn't get arrested that night.

Meeting Location/ Time: Rocky's Roadhouse Running Springs @ 8:30, departed @ 9 AM

Weather: Beautiful. Sunny, 70's

Trail comments:

Split into two groups listed above. Performed trail maintenance including trash pickup and tree removal where needed. Upward bound group met with downward group at waterfall. XJ was stuck broken (Passenger u-joint at axle shaft) on top of waterfall obstacle so group passed on left next to tree. Downward group stopped for lunch at waterfall. Upward group continued to crab-flats for lunch then on to Holcomb creek toward Fawnskin. Castulo earned a got cowbell for getting stuck on tree in parking lot. Joshua Bleijenberg gave Mike Maneth bell on trail. Rick Walter had a weld at his track bar mount start to come apart toward the end of Holcomb trail. Rick used a ratchet tie strap to tie the front axle to the frame and was able to drive home under his own power.

Cowbells and Damage: Castulo and Rick Walter.

Run Leader: Rick Walter

Ray and Pete were able to get back in time for the meeting. Rick and others are still there. In Utah, a gallon of gas cost $3.63. Had six vehicles. One will be available for membership as this will be his second event. Pete started overheating. Put some antifreeze in. Sounded like the throw out bearing went out, so he turned around. The ones who continued on met up in St George. From last gas to Kelly Point, is 146 miles and its gas guzzling territory. Has some pictures. Camped the night. Was very remote and didn't see many people. No trash at Kelly Point. Verizon and Spring worked. AT&T did not work. Rick got a flat tire coming out. He went ahead and came back after that. The road in the BLM area was okay, the road in the National Park, was not well maintained. Need lots of gas to make this run.

To plan the route, Rick used Google Earth to create the route and loaded, the GPS way points which were accurate.

Hi Desert Roundup (Cal-4-Wheel)

May 23- 26

A lot of people liked having it at Slash X. Some rain on Wednesday and Thursday. Pete came out Thursday afternoon, Jesse came out Thursday early evening. Friday night run. Had to make some adjustments due to permit issues.

Saturday ran Devil's Loop. Did the prerun on the 17th which six came out. James came out for his first run. James was the guinea pig – had 33" wheels was able to use his vehicle to check the gatekeeper. Explored a new loop and added to the run. Found another harder section right off Stoddard Wells Road. During HDR, had 18 vehicles. One person had a pretty close to stock vehicle, a Cherokee. He got stuck on the gatekeeper, so he turned back. After that, didn't have many problems. One flat tire. Had two breast-feeding mothers and had to take a break for that. Had three other vehicles that were relatives and broke off to help with the rollover. Did the extra loop and gave an option for a couple of extra obstacles. Finished about 3:00/3:30.

The event only had four runs on Saturday. Some other clubs need to step up for next year.

Saturday night, had the Best Equipped. Danny and Pete's vehicles were used. One kid took a nasty fall on the rocks and sands and scraped his leg pretty good. Used the event first aid kit the clean it up.

Jesse had the Blue Moon. As he was approaching the Devil's Loop, he realized that the run hadn't gone through but was able to get through the area right ahead of them. They then met up for lunch and then continued. Jesse blew a front tire. There were two Gen Right people on the trail who changed the tire before Jesse turned around. He then added a couple of other spots to add some more time on. One item requested was a windshield wiper and one of the teams ripped his wiper off his vehicle.

Sunday had two official games and Gen Right volunteered on the spot to do the Wet Lap. Gen Right is being very helpful. Castullo won 1st place on the Articulation Ramp. Had the kids' games. The wagon got a flat tire and had a few roll overs. Sandy noted that on the potato game some of the kids had some problems with the tongs.

Hemet donated $800 for the raffle. Mike Hardy was chair for the raffle and he did a great job. Tried the buckets along with the general raffle. Sarah (Bill Smith's granddaughter) won the bike for the kids' raffle (again). Had a little bit of issue with the port-a-potties where they ran out toilet paper, but Jesse had extra.

Last year was 102 registered, this year was 151. Hoping for 200 next year. SlashX was ecstatic with the event. They were happy with the friendliness and courteous. The only issue that was found was that people were putting trash in the SlashX dumpster, which isn't big enough for that. One suggestion was to bring out a dumpster, but that costs $1,000.

Have 14 t-shirts left.

Keith and Jesse will chair HDR next year again.

As we lined up for the run two vehicles looked questionable for the Devils Loop. An almost stock XJ and a almost stock Toyota 4 Runner. I talked with every driver in the group and all were ready to try the Devils Loop trail.

We proceeded to the air down spot on the power line road. After a quick drivers meeting we headed to the trail. The first obstacle is the gate keeper: a big pile of rocks that requires good ground clearance, low gears and a skilled driver. The first few made it through without problems. The XJ started out good but than his back tires lost traction and he was high centered. After a few unsuccessful tries at pulling him forward we winched him backward and over to the side. All others in the group made it through some requiring a little rocking and extra engine power. The XJ decided to return to camp rather than be a burden to the rest of the group.

Now down to 17 vehicles we continued down the trail. The only other problems before lunch were a flat tire on the Toyota 4 Runner and a short stop to feed the two babies we had on the run, first time I stopped a run for that reason.

We met up with the Blue Moon group at the lunch spot and both runs stopped for lunch. We added one vehicle from the Blue Moon run to our group and we were back to 18. We made it through the rest of the trail without incident. I added an extra loop at the end because we were ahead of schedule.

Now finished with the run about half the group returned to camp and the rest of us tried a short trail off Stoddard Wells Rd that has two difficult obstacles and heads back to the Devils Loop gate keeper from the other direction. All in the group made it through some had to try different lines and use lockers. There are some big rocks in this new section off Stoddard Wells Rd. From here we headed back to the HDR headquarters. Over all a fun run with a good group of people.

4From the Slash X we headed to the trail head via Hwy 247, the power line road and Stoddard Wells Rd. The trail starts near the old HDR game area off Stoddard Wells Rd. The weather was warm and dry with light winds, temperatures in the high 80's to low 90's

The Devils Loop trail gate keeper is intended to be challenging for stock and mildly modified rigs and fun for everyone else. James, our guest, has a stock JK Unlimited Rubicon on 33's. He high-centered 2 times on the gate keeper and Randy winched him off. Once we got some rocks in the right place, and his lockers going, he made it through.

The Devils Loop Trail is moderate to difficult. If you don't have at least one locker, there is a good chance you will get stuck unless you drive a good line. The trail follows the washes through the hills east of Stoddard

Wells Rd. There are several rock crawling sections, hill climbs, steep ledges, and the squeeze: a ledge that climbs through a narrow cut in the rocks. The JK was a little wide for the squeeze, James decided to use the by-pass and save some paint for a future run. A little spotting was needed but everyone made it through without any problems. We had time to do an extra loop near the end and go through a more difficult section off Stoddard Wells Rd. Ron's almost stock LJ made it through the more difficult section after changing his approach to avoid the bigger rocks. Pete told me he was going to use the by-pass but when he watched Ron go through he changed his mind and came through.

At the end of the day we took a scenic way out on Stoddard Wells Rd to the 15 Fwy. We drove all the way to the 15 Fwy entrance and parked under the freeway to air up in the shade. The temperature was maybe 10 to 15 degrees cooler then out in the sun. Good suggestion Pete. Over all a good day on the trail. I'm looking forward to HDR next week.

Corral Canyon- 5/3/14

Rick Walter and Pete Johnson camped at the Bobcat Meadows Camp Ground Friday night. Randy called Pete around 11 pm Friday night and related that an equipment failure caused his trailer brakes to lock up on Buckman Springs Road almost to the entrance of Corral Canyon OHVA. The resulting roadside excursion tore a big hole in his camper shell. No one was hurt, no damage to the Jeep, and no other vehicles involved, but extremely discouraging to Randy and Donna after fighting traffic for about 7 hours. Donna was already nursing a broken foot. Sometimes if we didn't have bad luck, we would have no luck at all...

Trail Leader Danny Ward and better half Linda, Josh Bleijenberg with friend Chip German riding shotgun, and Gilbert Vasquez arrived early Saturday. Since all known participants were present, we headed out from the meadows with four wranglers and a Cherokee, all with lockers, good ground clearance, and decent articulation.

We headed from Bobcat Meadows camp ground, about a mile south of the Four Corners staging area at the OHVA in San Diego County around 9 am, Saturday. Our goal was to try some of the new offshoot trails that the Tierra Del Sol Club had created. On the way we were delayed by a large rattlesnake sunning in the middle of the trail. The rattler was not pleased when snake wrangler, Rick Walters herded the rattler off the trail.

We made a right turn onto Morena Stokes Road and headed for Gunslinger. Just short of the entrance to Gunslinger we came upon a new metal trail sign. The name, "Peacemaker" was cut through 1/4" plate with "Tierra Del Sol" in cursive below. No indication of difficulty level or length. This trail, first of three offshoots we found, was short (about 1100 yards, with 70' of ascent and 80' of descent), but it had some decently large rock obstacles, but not enough to convince a guy to make his "peace." That would come later.

The second offshoot we found is called "Diamondback," a more sinister moniker. It turned out to be both longer and more difficult than Peacemaker, at about three-quarters of a mile, 80' of ascent, and 120' of descent, with larger rocks, bigger drops, tighter squeezes, more articulation, and twisty.

"Winchester," the third offshoot was tiny, only about 200 yards long, but interesting nonetheless, easier than the others by far.

We headed East after Winchester and about a half mile later came to the exit from Bronco Peak trail. The trail leader suggested we try Bronco Peak backwards, and we were all silly enough to agree. The backside of Bronco has been getting more and more eroded over the last few years, and we shortly realized that we were in for a few challenges. Just how many we didn't know, but it soon became apparent that turning around wasn't going to be an easy way out.

After about a quarter mile we got to the Bronco Peak Connector turnoff, which we intelligently avoided, and after a couple more hours of battling obstacles, many of which needed a spotter to negotiate, we reached the summit. WHEW! But the way down had some interesting obstacles, too, so it took us quite a while to get back down to the loop road.

We got back to Bobcat Meadows about 5 pm, tired but exhilarated. No injuries, cowbells, major damage, or breakdowns. A gentle breeze moderated the warm temperatures. Overall a good run, at least on the trail. Challenging, strenuous, and interesting, and running Bronco Peak backwards makes it a very different trail. Without good equipment, good drivers, excellent spotting, and some minor road building and maintenance, it could easily have turned into a midnight run. Many thanks to Tierra Del Sol for constructing the offshoots on Gunslinger. They make for a much more entertaining trail.

After some jolly debriefing at Bobcat Meadows, Danny and Linda hit the highway, while Rick, Josh, Chip, Gilbert, and Pete enjoyed another night at camp. The overnight low dropped to about 50, but there was plenty of firewood thanks to Gilbert.

On the way home Sunday, Josh had some excitement when his left front wheel decided to part company from the jeep at about 65 mph on I-80. The tire and wheel passed him, and headed for places unknown in the brush in the freeway median. Meanwhile, hot metal from the exploded wheel assembly had started a small brushfire alongside the road, which, thankfully, Gilbert ran back and extinguished.

The Gray Fox aka Robert Micklick

Adios Amigos,

I have led my last trail,

I have told my last tale,

I have caught my last fish, and I send my last e-mail.

I departed, peacefully, on my last great journey this morning at 9:13. I leave you with wonderful memories of all the grand trails that we have traveled together over the years. Miss me, but not too much! "Don't Ya know" Keep on Wheelin and enjoy every day to the utmost!

PS - I apologize if you get more than one of my last e-mails. I'm not quite familiar with my new surroundings yet!

For those of you that never met the "The Gray Fox" he was quite a guy. I along with some friends used him several times as a back country guide in Moab UT. He had a quick wit, great stories as well as a fine offroader. The Gray Fox had many friends and will be missed.
